2. Suggested readings can be utilized to frame specific questions while reading the ethnographic texts and writing about them. The examination, however, will be patterned on the parameters mentioned in the Course content.

3. A brief rationale before the four sets of ethnographies has been provided in the form of a reading to familiarize the students with the essence of the paper and to outline what is intended in the process of ‘reading + an ethnography.

4. The committee of courses at the Department of Sociology may prescribe these or any other pairs of texts for any given academic year.

Course Learning Outcomes

1. At the end of the course students should be able to identify the expanse of social scientific knowledge and be proficient with the technique and have the patience to read, understand and critically analyze full-length texts that are often about another, unfamiliar culture.

2. The course aims to encourage interdisciplinary thinking between sociology, anthropology directly but also with philosophy and literature, through reading of ethnographies. It also seeks to bring the student to a global standard of familiarity with different types of classics within the combined disciplines of sociology, anthropology and ethnology.

3. The Course will enable students to not only come to terms with the making of human knowledge but also identifying limits of enquiry by learning and engaging in critical thinking about the research presented in the ethnographies. They are also expected to be able to work with ethnographic description as a unit of knowledge at par with numbers in quantitative studies.

4. Doing this Course will help the student discover the strength of small details and to identify what matters to people. They would also be able to engage with the community and understand the significant role of subjective and objective knowledge systems through the exercises in participant observation.

Additional Resources:

Audio Visual Material:

Screenings of ethnographic films will complement the teaching.

Video documentation around the ethnographies could also be used concurrently while reading texts.

Teaching - Learning process
The subject is designed to be reader-student centric. It is believed that the student would follow a rigorous regime of reading the texts and participating in the class room discussions. That is the reason why barring the key texts, other texts have been kept outside the mandatory reading list.

However the teacher’s role is significant in two ways:

1. Bringing on board perspectives on how to read ethnographies.
2. Drawing attention to details that are likely to be missed by the students.

Assessment Method

Interactive classroom sessions keep the full-length text fresh in the memories of both students and teachers. The modes of assessment which include assignments, enactments, presentations etc, are designed to test the critical skills of reading ethnographies and not so much as reproducing the descriptions of the texts.
