COURSE 905: POLITICAL ECONOMICS

Course Description

This course introduces students to political economy of institutions and development. We explore the interrelation and interaction between state, power and economic outcomes. Lectures will mainly focus on theoretical frameworks. Empirical papers will be covered through class discussions and students' presentations. As a supplement we may also read original texts on Liberalism and Marxism. The list of topics is intentionally long so that students can choose topics for self-study – a subset of topics and papers will be covered in lecture.

This course is only open to M.A. (final) students. Though there are no pre-requisites, students are expected to be comfortable in basic Microeconomics and Game Theory.
