

DELHI UNIVERSITY PRESS

The University of Delhi is one of the oldest and most prestigious universities of India and South Asia, with a long tradition of scholarship and alumni with outstanding achievements. There is a plan to have a publishing platform under the aegis of this esteemed university which will reflect the prestige and high standards of this university, in the same way as prominent universities across the world.

The faculty, students and alumni of this university are invited to submit their book proposals for favour of consideration to the undersigned. The publishing house will also consider proposals from authors outside of the university if they submit works of exceptional merit.

It is to be emphasized that the press will only publish academic works of impeccable ethical and intellectual standards. We are a liberal and progressive institution and would welcome critical and well researched manuscripts. The initial publications will be in the English language.

Submission guidelines are attached. Those interested may submit their proposals in the given format directly to :
Prof. Subhadra Mitra Channa at the email address
