Areas of Interest / Specialization

AREA OF INTEREST IN TEACHING AND

In teaching my area of interest comprises of modern and classical Urdu poetry. While doing research for independence I developed a special interest in symbols used in classical poetry as well. The exclusive study of the i special area of interest in teaching. For this reason I have been teaching prosody, classical and mode Delhi University.

However my area of interest in research is slightly different, though it remains restricted to poetry on independence. I have chosen this field as my area of research, expending it to the trends of feminist p poetesses of India, but there are poetesses in whose poetry we can trace voices trying to understand place and role in the male-world. These voices are important enough to notice and study them as an em and Shahnaz Nabi can be cited as representative poetesses of this voice.

On the other hand, Urdu poetesses of Pakistan have a definite feminist approach in their poetry and see the battle of rights and social justice for women. Many of them are viewed as trend-setters in feminism. Kishwar Naheed fall in this category.

My area of interest in this regard is to study and analyze the trends in India and Pakistan, the reasons to compare and contrast the features of their poetic genius etc. I am planning to publish soon a book on Urdu poetesses (I have published a book on modern Urdu poetesses of India after Independence). Sociology of the development of Urdu in India and impact of this on the feminist movement of the subcontinent is another area of my interest, which I am also planning to work on.

Besides these, I consider translation of fiction a worthy work to do. I feel that Urdu fiction writers today are not translating other Indian languages or writers of other parts of the world. An obvious reason is non-availability of Urdu translators to educate and motivate our creative writers. For this reason and for students' sake also I want to work in this area.
