Message from the Vice Chancellor

The primary duty of a university is to give direction to society and to channelize the energies of youth for productive and creative purposes. This has to be accomplished through education. I have often been asked why the Four Year Undergraduate Programme is being implemented at the University of Delhi. . The old system needed to be re-engineered for your benefit. For instance, students were not easily being selected for jobs, the curriculum was not necessarily placing them in touch with real life issues. I am sure with these changes you will derive greater benefit.

The Four Year Undergraduate Programme places the student at the centre of its philosophy and its curriculum. One definition of education is that one must understand the call of the inner voice, the “antardhvani”, and respond to this call. The new programme gives the student a strong education and worldly competence through Foundation Courses, and a wide range of subject choices for specialisation, backed by skill based, applied courses. Moreover a student can select 'minor' areas of interest, find time for sports and cultural activities, and learn how to undertake projects and research. Technology and contemporary classrooms will offer the best in teaching-learning methods. The inspiration of Mahatma Gandhi and Dr. Ambedkar will guide thoughts on inclusive education.

I welcome the new students and urge them to explore their talent and abilities through the four year programme. It will help you to know the grand challenges of India; it will help you to find a place in its dynamic environment. The courses have been carefully designed to bring out the best in each and every student. My colleagues and I are here to guide and help you through this important journey of your life. We value your trust in DU, your presence and your contribution in making this University ever greater.

Dinesh Singh

The Council considered and accepted the following recommendation of the Committee appointed at the meeting of Principals and Deans held on 12.9.57 regarding the colour of the University Flag.

“We understand that royal purple is laid down in the University calendar as the University colour. We recommend that royal purple is a dignified colour and it should be retained for the University. The University Flag will be all purple with a University crest as made out by the artist painted on it, the white ring with the name of the University and the University motto in black or blue, whichever stands out well, the elephant and lotus in gold, the river in Cambridge blue and the book in white.”

University of Delhi

The University of Delhi was established in 1922 as a unitary, teaching and residential university by an act of the Central Legislative Assembly. The University which began life with three colleges and 750 students has now become India's largest institution of higher learning and among the largest in the world. Presently the university has 16 faculties and 86 departments spread over North and South campuses. It has 77 affiliated colleges and a few other recognized institutes with around 1,50,000 regular students and more than 2,50,000 students in non-formal stream. The President of India is the Visitor, the Vice President is the Chancellor and the Chief Justice of India is the Pro-Chancellor of the University.

The University of Delhi is a premier university of the country and is known for its high standards in teaching and research. It attracts eminent scholars to its faculty and has a rich academic tradition which has for decades attracted talented students who have made many important contributions to society. Students come here from different parts of the country and it also caters to the needs of many foreign students. Currently, students from over 68 different countries are studying in this university. These students have left the university richer in knowledge and understanding on completion of their studies. University of Delhi is conscious about its responsibility to the Nation at large as the students of today will shape its future of tomorrow. The university is dedicated to help its students in career and character building with sense of pride.

Recently, University of Delhi has come up with new and renovated infrastructural facilities including additional hostels, sports stadia, Wi - Fi networking, upgraded Class rooms, teaching laboratories and E-libraries. While various faculties, departments and university affiliated colleges are spread across the entire state, a computer network links them so that students and faculty can collaborate and draw upon the available resources of the university in an institutional way. The research facilities in different departments are of international standards. The university has signed many MOUs with different countries under International Exchange programs and Treaties. University of Delhi through its teaching and research leads the youth of the country and adds new dimensions to their personality.

University celebrates its foundation day on May 1 of each year. The first such function was held in 2012 and was presided over by Dr. Karan Singh (Padam Vibhushan), Member, Rajya Sabha. Recently, the university started a program in which students of different colleges particularly women, NCC and NSS students were sent on study tours through the Chartered trains "Gyan Uday Express" across different important destinations in the country. The aim of these study tours was to empower the students with various facets of life including preparing reports after visiting these places. The train journey was fully supported by University itself. The University aims to continue such projects in future too. The University has started Innovation projects from different colleges involving multi-disciplinary subjects involving teachers and students of undergraduate courses to focus mainly on problems related to society and prepare project reports for further research/implementation. The University organizes annual cultural festival called Antardhvani, in which students from all colleges are encouraged to participate in cultural events and show case their talent. NCC parade of cadets (from all wings) from different colleges is held every year during Antardhvani.

The University of Delhi flags its Four Year Undergraduate Programme in 2013. This makes the admissions of the year 2013-2014 very special indeed. The programme is trans-disciplinary and offers a judicious mix of classroom lectures, field experience, along with projects and presentations. It promises to deliver both life and work skills. Moreover in this programme students have the unique opportunity to select and combine courses of their very own choice. Another key feature of the Four Year Programme is that it carries multiple exit options with the flexibility of returning to the University within a span period.

This Brochure is a comprehensive guide for admission seekers to the Four Year Undergraduate Programme.
